Set 01 — Passage 1: The Seed Library (Q001-Q010)

Passage / Poem

At the small town library, Mira noticed that children borrowed many storybooks but rarely opened the books about local plants. She placed a cabinet near the entrance and called it the Seed Library. Families contributed labelled packets of seeds. A borrower wrote a name and date in the register and returned some seeds after the harvest. Children compared how seeds grew in sunlight and shade and recorded their observations. Not every seed sprouted, but Mira called the unsuccessful trials useful evidence rather than failure. After two seasons, the unused courtyard had become a garden. Older residents supplied traditional plant names, and the children made labels in two languages so more visitors could take part.

Q001. What is the central idea of the passage?

- A. A community library turned seed sharing into a shared learning project.
- B. A library stopped lending storybooks to children.
- C. Only professional gardeners can grow local plants.
- D. The town decided to replace its courtyard with a market.

Answer: A

Explanation: The passage connects the Seed Library, children's observations and community participation.

Q002. What did a borrower enter in the register?

- A. The price of every vegetable
- B. The borrower's name and the date.
- C. The colour of the library walls
- D. The number of storybooks read

Answer: B

Explanation: The passage specifically says that the name and date were written in the register.

Q003. Why did Mira call unsuccessful trials useful evidence?

- A. They proved that seeds should never be planted.
- B. They showed that only older residents could do science.
- C. They helped learners observe that growing conditions can affect results.
- D. They made the register unnecessary.

Answer: C

Explanation: Treating an unsuccessful trial as evidence encourages observation and revision instead of fear of mistakes.

Q004. The word "sprouted" in the passage means—

- A. was carefully packed
- B. was sold in a shop
- C. was hidden from visitors
- D. began to grow

Answer: D

Explanation: A seed sprouts when it begins to grow, usually by producing a shoot.

Q005. Why were labels made in two languages?

- A. So that more visitors could understand and participate.
- B. So that the plants would grow twice as fast.
- C. So that the library could charge two fees.
- D. So that children would not need to observe the plants.

Answer: A

Explanation: Bilingual labels make the garden more accessible and value the languages of its community.

Q006. Which statement is NOT supported by the passage?

- A. Families contributed labelled seed packets.
- B. The library sold a packet of seeds to every borrower.
- C. Children recorded observations about growth.
- D. Older residents shared traditional plant names.

Answer: B

Explanation: The passage mentions contribution, observation and local names, but not the sale of seeds.

Q007. In the phrase “placed a cabinet near the entrance”, “placed” is closest in meaning to—

- A. removed
- B. painted
- C. put
- D. locked

Answer: C

Explanation: Placed means put or set something in a particular location.

Q008. Which activity best shows children using evidence in the project?

- A. Memorising the names of all library visitors
- B. Choosing the brightest colour for the cabinet
- C. Returning every book without reading it
- D. Comparing growth in sunlight and shade and recording what they saw.

Answer: D

Explanation: A comparison followed by a record is a simple evidence-based investigation.

Q009. Which is the most suitable title for the passage?

- A. A Seed Library: Learning in a Courtyard
- B. The Day the Library Closed
- C. A Competition Among Gardeners
- D. The Storybook That Went Missing

Answer: A

Explanation: The title includes both the seed-sharing idea and the learning that occurred in the courtyard.

Q010. In “the children made labels”, the word “made” is a—

- A. pronoun
- B. verb
- C. preposition
- D. adjective

Answer: B

Explanation: Made names the action performed by the children, so it is a verb.

Set 02 — Passage 2: The Library on Wheels (Q011–Q020)

Passage / Poem

Every Thursday afternoon, a blue van travelled along the narrow roads between three villages. It carried storybooks, science magazines and a small box of puppets. The van's shelves were low enough for young children to browse. A volunteer read aloud while another volunteer helped readers choose books to take home. They kept a simple record of the books that were requested most often. When children asked for stories about birds and rivers, the next month's collection included more such books. The service did not replace the village schools; it extended the school library to homes that were far from a permanent building. At first, some children were hesitant to enter the van, but regular visits made it a familiar and welcoming place.

Q011. What is the main purpose of the blue van?

- A. To transport school furniture to a city
- B. To sell puppets at a weekly market
- C. To bring books and reading opportunities to villages without a nearby permanent library.
- D. To take children away from their schools

Answer: C

Explanation: The mobile library extends access to books for children living far from a permanent library building.

Q012. On which day did the van visit the villages?

- A. Monday
- B. Tuesday
- C. Saturday
- D. Thursday

Answer: D

Explanation: The first sentence states that the van travelled every Thursday afternoon.

Q013. Why did the volunteers record requested books?

- A. The record helped them choose books that matched readers' interests.
- B. It was used to calculate children's ages.
- C. It helped them close the village schools.
- D. It showed which van needed a new colour.

Answer: A

Explanation: The collection was changed after the record showed interest in birds and rivers.

Q014. The phrase "browse" in the passage means—

- A. tear pages from books
- B. look through books casually
- C. write a book from memory
- D. hide books under a shelf

Answer: B

Explanation: To browse is to look through available books before choosing one.

Q015. Which statement is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. The shelves were low for young children.
- B. The van carried books and puppets.
- C. The van replaced the village schools.
- D. Regular visits made the van familiar.

Answer: C

Explanation: The passage explicitly says that the service did not replace village schools.

Q016. In “They kept a simple record”, the pronoun “They” refers to—

- A. the village roads
- B. the young children only
- C. the shelves in the van
- D. the volunteers

Answer: D

Explanation: The two volunteers, rather than the roads, children or shelves, kept the record.

Q017. Why did a volunteer read aloud?

- A. It gave children a shared listening experience and support while they explored books.
- B. It made the van travel faster.
- C. It prevented children from choosing books.
- D. It replaced all writing activities in school.

Answer: A

Explanation: Reading aloud invites participation and supports children who may still be developing independent reading fluency.

Q018. What can be inferred about the service?

- A. Only one kind of book was allowed.
- B. Community feedback was used to improve the collection.
- C. The volunteers ignored children’s requests.
- D. The van visited only once a year.

Answer: B

Explanation: The next collection included more bird and river stories because children had requested them.

Q019. The word “hesitant” is closest in meaning to—

- A. very noisy
- B. already expert
- C. uncertain or unwilling at first
- D. completely absent

Answer: C

Explanation: A hesitant child is unsure or reluctant before taking part.

Q020. Which title best captures the passage?

- A. A Van Without Shelves
- B. The Closed Village School
- C. A Race Between Three Buses
- D. Books Beyond the Main Road

Answer: D

Explanation: The title highlights how the mobile library carries books beyond ordinary access routes.

Set 03 — Passage 3: The Garden After Sunset (Q021-Q030)

Passage / Poem

The science club at a school noticed that some flowers opened only in the evening. Pale jasmine and night-blooming flowers released a strong fragrance after sunset. The students watched the garden quietly and saw moths visiting the flowers. On some nights, fruit bats also flew near the taller trees. To test whether these visitors mattered, the students covered one group of flowers with fine mesh and left another group uncovered. The uncovered group later produced more fruit. The students repeated the comparison for several nights, because one observation could be unusual. They concluded that night visitors helped move pollen and decided not to leave bright lights on throughout the night. They also planted more native flowering plants.

Q021. What is the central idea of the passage?

- A. Night-active animals can help plants reproduce, so gardens should protect their habitat.
- B. All flowers open only after sunset.
- C. Bright lights are necessary for every garden experiment.
- D. Fruit bats cannot live near schools.

Answer: A

Explanation: The observations link night visitors with pollination and lead to a conservation-friendly decision.

Q022. Why were some flowers pale?

- A. They had never received any water.
- B. Pale flowers are easier for night visitors to notice in dim light.
- C. The students painted them before the experiment.
- D. Pale colour prevents all insects from landing.

Answer: B

Explanation: The passage presents pale flowers as an adaptation that can make them visible at night.

Q023. What did the mesh comparison suggest?

- A. Mesh always makes flowers grow taller.
- B. The students had counted the wrong number of trees.
- C. The uncovered flowers received useful visits that supported fruit production.
- D. Flowers can produce fruit only in bright electric light.

Answer: C

Explanation: The uncovered group produced more fruit, suggesting that visitors could move pollen between flowers.

Q024. The word “nocturnal” would describe an animal that is active—

- A. only in winter
- B. under the soil at all times
- C. only during a school lesson
- D. at night

Answer: D

Explanation: Nocturnal means active mainly during the night.

Q025. Which action would go against the students' conclusion?

- A. Keeping strong lights on all night near the flowering plants.
- B. Planting native flowering species
- C. Observing the garden without disturbing it
- D. Repeating a comparison on different nights

Answer: A

Explanation: Continuous bright light could disturb night visitors, while the other actions support careful study or habitat.

Q026. Why did the students repeat the comparison for several nights?

- A. To make the flowers open at exactly the same time
- B. To make their conclusion more dependable than a single observation would be.
- C. To avoid recording any results
- D. To prove that mesh is a type of soil

Answer: B

Explanation: Repeated observations help account for unusual conditions and increase confidence in a finding.

Q027. In "They repeated the comparison", "They" refers to—

- A. the flowers
- B. the bright lights
- C. the students
- D. the taller trees

Answer: C

Explanation: The science-club students repeated the comparison.

Q028. Which is the most suitable title?

- A. A School Without Flowers
- B. The Fastest Growing Tree
- C. Why Every Light Must Shine
- D. The Garden After Sunset

Answer: D

Explanation: The passage focuses on what happens in the garden after sunset and why it matters.

Q029. In "brighter lights", the word "brighter" is a—

- A. comparative adjective
- B. plural noun
- C. preposition
- D. past-tense verb

Answer: A

Explanation: Brighter compares the degree of brightness of lights and therefore functions as a comparative adjective.

Q030. The students' attitude in the passage is best described as—

- A. careless and dismissive
- B. curious and careful about conservation
- C. angry about reading
- D. uninterested in evidence

Answer: B

Explanation: They asked a question, tested it repeatedly and changed their practice to protect night visitors.

Set 04 — Poem 1: The Unfinished Bridge (Q031-Q040)

Passage / Poem

Across the stream a bridge began,
Three planks were laid by noon;
A sudden storm shook the bank
And sent the tools home soon.

The builder did not call it failure;
He marked the loosened ground.
“Tomorrow needs a stronger plan,”
He said, and looked around.

The bridge was still becoming,
Though no one crossed that day;
Patient hands can change a first attempt
And make a safer way.

Q031. What is the main message of the poem?

- A. A bridge should never be built near water.
- B. Storms make every plan useless forever.
- C. An unfinished attempt can be improved through patience and reflection.
- D. Tools are more important than careful thinking.

Answer: C

Explanation: The builder learns from the storm and plans a safer bridge instead of treating the first attempt as final.

Q032. In “patient hands”, the word “patient” describes—

- A. the stream’s depth
- B. the colour of the planks
- C. the time of the storm
- D. the hands or the person using them

Answer: D

Explanation: Patient is an adjective describing the careful, unhurried work of the builder.

Q033. Why was the bridge not completed that day?

- A. The storm loosened the bank and forced the work to stop.
- B. The builder forgot where the stream was.
- C. All the planks had already been sold.
- D. The children refused to cross the bridge.

Answer: A

Explanation: The storm shook the bank and sent the tools away, so construction stopped.

Q034. What does “did not call it failure” suggest?

- A. The builder had completed the bridge secretly.
- B. The builder viewed the setback as information for a better plan.
- C. The storm had not happened at all.
- D. The builder no longer cared about safety.

Answer: B

Explanation: The builder marked the loosened ground and planned a stronger design, showing a learning-oriented response.

Q035. Which image is created by the poem?

- A. A crowded classroom during an examination
- B. A train moving through a desert
- C. A person working beside a stream with planks and tools.
- D. A market filled with colourful balloons

Answer: C

Explanation: The stream, planks, bank and tools create a clear picture of bridge-building.

Q036. What did the builder do after the storm?

- A. He removed every tree in the area.
- B. He blamed the people who wanted to cross.
- C. He abandoned all future work without observing anything.
- D. He marked the loose ground and began thinking about a stronger plan.

Answer: D

Explanation: The poem says that he marked the loosened ground and planned for tomorrow.

Q037. The word “steady” is closest in meaning to—

- A. firm and controlled
- B. sudden and noisy
- C. empty and distant
- D. colourful and decorated

Answer: A

Explanation: Steady describes work that is firm, controlled and not hurried.

Q038. The tone of the poem is—

- A. mocking and impatient
- B. hopeful and persistent
- C. frightened without hope
- D. confused about the stream

Answer: B

Explanation: The poem presents revision and patience as ways to create a safer result.

Q039. Which title is most appropriate?

- A. The Tools That Disappeared
- B. A Stream Without Water
- C. A Bridge Still Becoming
- D. The Builder’s Holiday

Answer: C

Explanation: The title reflects the poem’s idea that the bridge is a continuing process rather than a finished object.

Q040. In “Though no one crossed that day”, “Though” expresses—

- A. place
- B. measurement
- C. possession
- D. contrast

Answer: D

Explanation: Though introduces a contrast: no one crossed, yet the work still had value and could continue.

Set 05 — Passage 4: Shared Streets (Q041-Q050)

Passage / Poem

Residents of a busy market complained that the street felt unsafe at the busiest hours. Before suggesting a permanent rule, a group of students surveyed how people used the road. They found that many trips were short enough to be walked, while delivery vehicles often arrived at the same time as schoolchildren. The town council tried a car-free hour on Sunday mornings. Shopkeepers first worried that fewer customers would come, so the council invited them to review the trial. With safer walking space, more families visited on foot. The plan was then adjusted: deliveries were scheduled earlier, and a clear path was kept for emergency vehicles. The experiment showed that a street can serve shoppers, residents and children when decisions are based on evidence and feedback.

Q041. What is the main claim of the passage?

- A. Small, evidence-based changes can make a street safer and more useful for different people.
- B. Markets should be closed every Sunday.
- C. Only delivery vehicles should use town roads.
- D. Students should make every traffic rule without consultation.

Answer: A

Explanation: The trial and its later adjustment show how evidence and feedback can support shared use of a street.

Q042. Why did the students conduct a survey?

- A. To decide which shop had the best signboard
- B. To understand actual travel patterns before a permanent decision was made.
- C. To count the number of library books
- D. To prevent residents from giving feedback

Answer: B

Explanation: The survey showed short trips and delivery timings, information that informed the trial.

Q043. What were shopkeepers initially worried about?

- A. They wanted the school to move to another town.
- B. They feared that all emergency vehicles would disappear.
- C. They feared that fewer customers would visit.
- D. They did not know how to open their shops.

Answer: C

Explanation: The passage directly states that shopkeepers worried about losing customers.

Q044. What happened after the trial was reviewed?

- A. All roads in the town were permanently closed.
- B. The students stopped collecting evidence.
- C. The market was moved beside the school.
- D. Deliveries were moved earlier and an emergency path was kept clear.

Answer: D

Explanation: The plan was adjusted to respond to practical needs revealed during the trial.

Q045. The word “trial” in the passage means —

- A. a temporary test of a plan
- B. a legal punishment
- C. a final celebration
- D. a private conversation

Answer: A

Explanation: Here trial means trying a plan for a limited period to see how it works.

Q046. Which principle does the council’s action illustrate?

- A. A first idea must never be changed.
- B. A public plan can be revised using evidence and people’s feedback.
- C. Only one group should use a public space.
- D. Evidence is unnecessary when a rule sounds simple.

Answer: B

Explanation: The council listened to shopkeepers and adjusted the arrangement after observing the trial.

Q047. Which event is NOT mentioned in the passage?

- A. Students surveyed road users.
- B. A car-free hour was tried.
- C. A new highway was built around the town.
- D. Deliveries were scheduled earlier.

Answer: C

Explanation: The passage contains no information about a new highway.

Q048. In “They found that many trips were short”, “They” refers to—

- A. the delivery vehicles
- B. the emergency workers
- C. the shop signs
- D. the group of students

Answer: D

Explanation: The students conducted the survey and made this finding.

Q049. Which title best suits the passage?

- A. A Street for Many Users
- B. The Market That Disappeared
- C. A Survey About Storybooks
- D. The Road to a Distant Forest

Answer: A

Explanation: The passage explains how one street can be planned for shoppers, residents and children together.

Q050. In “Although shopkeepers were worried”, “Although” is a—

- A. personal pronoun
- B. subordinating conjunction
- C. comparative adjective
- D. main verb

Answer: B

Explanation: Although introduces a dependent clause expressing contrast with the main idea.

Set 06 — Poem 2: A Seed’s Promise (Q051–Q060)

Passage / Poem

In dark soil I wait,
No drum announces my start.
Rain taps a quiet message;
A green thought opens its heart.

I borrow light from morning,
I hold the wind with a leaf.
A small beginning gathers strength
Beyond the gardener’s belief.

When rain returns to the thirsty ground,
I answer without a sound;
A patient root, a reaching stem,
And shade for those around.

Q051. What is the central idea of the poem?

- A. A seed needs a loud announcement before it can grow.
- B. Gardens are useful only to professional gardeners.
- C. Growth begins quietly and develops with time, care and natural support.

Revision target: In a passage, separate stated facts, inference, vocabulary and grammar clues. In grammar questions, read the complete sentence rather than matching a familiar word in isolation.

CTET Language II — English MCQ

Part 2: English Language Pedagogy — Q101-Q200

PYQ-concept based practice: These original questions cover the recurring CTET themes of language acquisition and learning, listening and speaking, reading comprehension, writing and grammar, multilingual classrooms, inclusive practice, assessment and remedial teaching.

Exam lens: Choose the response that develops communication, learner participation, inclusion and evidence-based teaching—not the option based only on rote memorisation, punishment or labelling.

Print/PDF: Build with `pdf-system/mcqmdtopdf.py` using `--toc --flow` for clear question separators.

Set 09 — Language Acquisition, Learning and the Learner (Q101-Q115)

Questions in this set focus on how children learn an additional language, the role of context, interaction, motivation, errors and prior experience.

Q101. Which classroom environment best supports English language acquisition?

- A. Frequent meaningful exposure, interaction and opportunities to use English for real purposes.
- B. Only silent copying of a model paragraph
- C. Only weekly grammar definitions
- D. Only one high-stakes examination

Answer: A

Explanation: Language develops when learners receive meaningful input and use it to communicate, not through copying alone.

Q102. How should a teacher view a learner's home language in an English class?

- A. As a problem that must never be heard
- B. As a resource that can connect prior knowledge with new English learning.
- C. As proof that the learner cannot learn English
- D. As a language useful only during examinations

Answer: B

Explanation: The home language carries identity and knowledge and can act as a bridge to an additional language.

Q103. A child says "She goed home." What is the most productive interpretation of this error?

- A. The child has no ability to learn language.
- B. The child should be stopped from speaking permanently.
- C. The child is forming a rule for the past tense and needs useful opportunities to revise it.
- D. The child has memorised every English tense correctly.

Answer: C

Explanation: The overgeneralisation shows an active developing language system; it can guide feedback and further exposure.

Q104. Which statement best describes the relationship between language and thought?

- A. Thought is possible only in one school language.
- B. Language and thought are completely unrelated.
- C. Children cannot express an idea until they know its grammatical label.
- D. Language supports thinking and communication, while thinking and experience also give language meaning.

Answer: D

Explanation: Language is a tool for making and sharing meaning, but learning is not reduced to memorising labels.

Q105. Why is interaction important in additional-language learning?

- A. It gives learners chances to negotiate meaning, receive feedback and practise expression.
- B. It ensures that only the teacher speaks.
- C. It removes the need for comprehension.
- D. It is useful only after grammar has been mastered.

Answer: A

Explanation: Interaction combines input, response and feedback and therefore supports communicative development.

Q106. Which task is most likely to increase a learner's motivation to use English?

- A. Copying the same sentence fifty times without a purpose
- B. Planning a short English message for a real audience, such as inviting a family to a class display.
- C. Memorising an unrelated list for public comparison
- D. Receiving a penalty for asking a question

Answer: B

Explanation: A relevant communicative purpose gives learners a reason to understand and express meaning.

Q107. A teacher asks a question and waits several seconds before choosing a speaker.

This wait time mainly—

- A. makes listening and thinking unnecessary
- B. guarantees that every answer will be grammatically perfect
- C. allows more learners to process the question and prepare a response.
- D. replaces all pair and group interaction

Answer: C

Explanation: Wait time is especially helpful to learners who need time to formulate language or are less confident.

Q108. Which example shows learner autonomy in an English classroom?

- A. Learners may speak only when the teacher repeats their words
- B. Every learner must reproduce one identical sentence
- C. The teacher hides the purpose of every activity
- D. Learners choose one of several topics and decide how to present their understanding.

Answer: D

Explanation: Meaningful choice and responsibility allow learners to take an active role in their learning.

Q109. A child-centred language class is one in which—

- A. learners use language to explore ideas, ask questions and communicate with one another.
- B. the teacher speaks for the entire period
- C. grammar terminology is the only accepted response
- D. learners' experiences are excluded from discussion

Answer: A

Explanation: Child-centred teaching gives learners agency and treats language as a means of meaning-making.

Q110. What is an appropriate use of scaffolding in English learning?

- A. The teacher completes every task for the learner
- B. The teacher first models a task, provides prompts and gradually withdraws support.
- C. The teacher gives support only after the course ends
- D. The teacher avoids challenging learners at all

Answer: B

Explanation: Scaffolding supports a learner within reach of a new task and is reduced as independence grows.

Q111. In language teaching, comprehensible input is—

- A. a list of words deliberately without any context
- B. speech so difficult that learners cannot find its meaning
- C. language that learners can understand with context or support while it offers some new learning.
- D. only a translation of every sentence into a familiar language

Answer: C

Explanation: Input should be understandable and meaningful, while still extending the learner's current ability.

Q112. What is a major limitation of teaching English only through mechanical drills?

- A. Drills always make learners too creative
- B. Drills automatically develop every communication skill
- C. Drills make the use of context unnecessary
- D. Drills may not give learners enough opportunity to create meaning in new situations.

Answer: D

Explanation: Controlled practice can help with form, but communication also needs purposeful and flexible use.

Q113. Why should an English teacher connect a lesson with learners' experiences?

- A. Familiar experiences help learners interpret new language and contribute their own meanings.
- B. Experience makes all new vocabulary unnecessary
- C. It ensures that learners never encounter an unfamiliar idea
- D. It changes language learning into handwriting practice

Answer: A

Explanation: Prior knowledge provides a meaningful entry point for comprehension and expression.

Q114. Which statement about readiness to learn a new language is most appropriate?

- A. A learner must wait until a particular birthday
- B. Readiness can be developed through supportive experiences; it should not be treated as a fixed gate.
- C. Only children with perfect pronunciation are ready
- D. Readiness depends only on a written grammar score

Answer: B

Explanation: Good teaching builds confidence, background knowledge and strategies instead of excluding learners prematurely.

Q115. Why is English useful as a classroom language across subjects?

- A. It should replace every learner's home language
- B. It is useful only in an English grammar period
- C. It can help learners access information, discuss ideas and express understanding in different fields.
- D. It should be taught without reference to meaning

Answer: C

Explanation: Language is a tool for learning and communicating in science, mathematics, social studies and daily life.

Set 10 — Listening, Speaking and Classroom Communication (Q116–Q130)

Questions in this set focus on active listening, oral interaction, pronunciation, turn-taking, confidence and assessment of spoken language.

Q116. Which statement distinguishes listening from merely hearing?

- A. Hearing always requires a written response
- B. Listening happens only when a speaker reads aloud
- C. Hearing and listening are identical in every situation
- D. Listening involves attending to, interpreting and responding to what is heard.

Answer: D

Explanation: Hearing is the physical reception of sound; listening includes attention, comprehension and response.

Q117. Before playing a short audio story, a teacher asks learners to predict its topic from the title. This is a—

- A. pre-listening activity that activates expectations and prior knowledge.
- B. summative test of final pronunciation
- C. post-writing correction exercise
- D. grammar translation activity with no listening purpose

Answer: A

Explanation: Prediction prepares learners to listen actively and gives them a purpose for checking their ideas.

Q118. If a learner listens once to identify the general topic, the learner is listening for—

- A. every individual sound
- B. gist
- C. the spelling of one isolated word
- D. the speaker's handwriting

Answer: B

Explanation: Gist means the overall meaning or main idea rather than every detail.

Q119. Which activity gives the strongest regular support to speaking development?

- A. Copying a dialogue without understanding it
- B. Listening to the teacher speak for the whole lesson
- C. Information-gap pair work in which each learner must ask and answer to complete a task.
- D. Marking punctuation in a silent paragraph

Answer: C

Explanation: An information gap creates a genuine need to speak, listen and exchange information.

Q120. A learner avoids speaking English because classmates laugh at mistakes. The teacher should first—

- A. announce the learner's mistakes to the class
- B. remove all oral work from the course
- C. give a zero before hearing the learner
- D. create respectful norms and low-risk opportunities for the learner to speak.

Answer: D

Explanation: Emotional safety and gradual participation are necessary for learners to take communicative risks.

Q121. What is the main language-learning value of role play?

- A. It lets learners practise language in a purposeful situation with roles and an audience.
- B. It tests memory without allowing interaction
- C. It ensures that only one learner speaks
- D. It replaces the need to understand the situation

Answer: A

Explanation: Role play provides a meaningful context for functional language and social interaction.

Q122. Which teacher question is most likely to promote extended speaking?

- A. Is the answer yes or no?
- B. What changes might you make to the story's ending, and why?
- C. Did you copy the title?
- D. Is "blue" a colour word?

Answer: B

Explanation: The question is open-ended and asks learners to explain and justify an idea.

Q123. A learner says, "He go to market." The teacher replies, "Yes, he goes to the market every day." This is an example of—

- A. punishing an oral error
- B. refusing to listen to the message
- C. recasting the learner's utterance while keeping communication meaningful.
- D. testing the learner's handwriting

Answer: C

Explanation: The teacher models the useful form without interrupting the learner with a humiliating correction.

Q124. Which behaviour demonstrates good turn-taking in a group discussion?

- A. speaking over every other member
- B. remaining silent while writing unrelated words
- C. changing the topic whenever another learner speaks
- D. Listening to a peer, waiting for a suitable pause and then contributing without interrupting.

Answer: D

Explanation: Turn-taking involves attention, respect for the speaker and an appropriate entry into the conversation.

Q125. Which tool is most appropriate for assessing a short speaking presentation?

- A. A rubric with clear criteria such as clarity, organisation, interaction and use of language.
- B. A score based only on the learner's accent
- C. A spelling test unrelated to the presentation
- D. A record of how quickly the learner finished lunch

Answer: A

Explanation: A relevant rubric makes expectations visible and assesses several aspects of oral performance.

Q126. In teaching pronunciation, the primary goal for most school learners should be—

- A. imitation of one particular regional accent
- B. intelligible pronunciation that enables listeners to understand the message.
- C. silence until every sound is perfect
- D. memorisation of phonetic symbols without speaking

Answer: B

Explanation: Intelligibility and confidence matter more than forcing every learner to adopt one accent.

Q127. Retelling a story in pairs mainly helps learners practise—

- A. only copying the author's punctuation
- B. only identifying the page number
- C. sequencing events, selecting language and expressing meaning orally.
- D. avoiding all use of their own words

Answer: C

Explanation: Retelling combines comprehension with organised oral production.

Q128. In think-pair-share, why do learners first discuss an answer with a partner?

- A. It prevents learners from considering different ideas
- B. It makes the teacher the only speaker
- C. It changes a comprehension task into a spelling test
- D. A rehearsal with a partner increases participation before whole-class sharing.

Answer: D

Explanation: Pair rehearsal lowers risk and gives learners time to formulate and refine language.

Q129. Which is the clearest evidence that a learner has listened actively?

- A. The learner responds appropriately and refers to an important idea from the speaker.
- B. The learner looks at the speaker but cannot relate to the message
- C. The learner copies a heading unrelated to the talk
- D. The learner repeats every sound without understanding

Answer: A

Explanation: An appropriate, meaning-based response demonstrates attention and comprehension.

Q130. Before a classroom debate, which practice is most important?

- A. Allowing the loudest learner to decide every answer
- B. Agreeing on the issue, speaking turns, respectful disagreement and evidence-based reasons.
- C. Rewarding interruption as a sign of confidence
- D. requiring learners to memorise one identical opinion

Answer: B

Explanation: Clear norms make oral interaction purposeful, inclusive and respectful.

Set 11 — Reading Comprehension and Strategies (Q131-Q145)

Questions in this set focus on decoding, comprehension, prediction, inference, vocabulary in context, genres and strategic reading.

Q131. What is the purpose of a pre-reading discussion about a text's title and picture?

- A. It gives the complete answer before reading
- B. It tests handwriting before any meaning is made
- C. It activates prior knowledge and encourages learners to form questions or predictions.
- D. It ensures that every learner predicts the same event

Answer: C

Explanation: Pre-reading prepares a meaning-making purpose without replacing the act of reading.

Q132. Phonics instruction primarily helps early readers—

- A. memorise the plot of every story
- B. judge the moral character of an author
- C. translate every sentence word for word
- D. connect letters or letter groups with the sounds they represent.

Answer: D

Explanation: Phonics supports decoding by making sound-symbol relationships more systematic.

Q133. When a learner reads a heading and first sentences quickly to find the general idea, the strategy is—

- A. skimming
- B. scanning for one exact date
- C. copying the entire passage
- D. proofreading punctuation only

Answer: A

Explanation: Skimming is rapid reading for the overall sense or main idea.

Q134. A learner looks through a timetable to find the departure time of one bus. This is—

- A. reading every word aloud for pronunciation
- B. scanning for specific information.
- C. predicting a fictional ending
- D. writing a personal narrative

Answer: B

Explanation: Scanning means searching a text for a particular piece of information.

Q135. Which response best demonstrates an inference from a story?

- A. The story has four paragraphs, as counted from the page
- B. The word "doorway" has eight letters
- C. The character is probably worried because she keeps checking the empty doorway.
- D. The title is printed at the top

Answer: C

Explanation: An inference combines a clue in the text with reasonable interpretation rather than repeating a visible fact.

Q136. A learner reads accurately but struggles to explain meaning. Which support is most appropriate?

- A. Give only longer passages and no discussion
- B. Lower every text to isolated word lists
- C. Ask the learner to copy the passage repeatedly
- D. Use shared reading and think-alouds to model how readers connect clues and monitor understanding.

Answer: D

Explanation: Think-aloud and shared reading make comprehension processes visible and invite guided practice.

Q137. What is the best first strategy when learners meet an unfamiliar word in a narrative?

- A. Use surrounding clues, word parts and the sentence's meaning before checking a reference source.
- B. Stop reading and memorise every possible dictionary meaning
- C. Assume the word always has its most common meaning
- D. Skip every sentence containing an unfamiliar word

Answer: A

Explanation: Context and word structure often provide a useful tentative meaning; a dictionary can then confirm it.

Q138. Which question requires higher-order reading rather than simple recall?

- A. What is the character's name?
- B. How would the outcome change if the main character had accepted the neighbour's advice?
- C. Where does the first paragraph end?
- D. How many lines are in the poem?

Answer: B

Explanation: The question asks learners to reason about a possible consequence using the text.

Q139. A teacher asks learners to explain which clues helped them reject an incorrect prediction. This develops—

- A. only speed of handwriting
- B. memorisation of the teacher's prediction
- C. metacognitive awareness of reading strategies and evidence.
- D. silent copying without comprehension

Answer: C

Explanation: Explaining how one read and revised an idea makes the reading process conscious.

Q140. How should a teacher respond when a learner asks for the meaning of every unfamiliar word?

- A. Translate every word immediately and stop all reading
- B. tell the learner that questions about words are not allowed
- C. ask the learner to guess randomly without checking
- D. Encourage selective use of context and reference tools, focusing first on words important to the meaning.

Answer: D

Explanation: Strategic readers tolerate some uncertainty and clarify words that matter for comprehension.

Q141. Why should learners encounter different genres such as notices, stories, poems and reports?

- A. Different genres have different purposes, structures and language features.
- B. Genre variety makes comprehension unnecessary
- C. Only stories can develop language
- D. Every genre must be read with exactly the same strategy

Answer: A

Explanation: Genre awareness helps learners adapt their expectations and reading strategies.

Q142. Which classroom practice best encourages voluntary reading?

- A. Allowing only the longest book to be selected
- B. A varied, accessible class library with time for learners to choose and discuss books.
- C. grading every page read under time pressure
- D. keeping books locked so that they remain clean

Answer: B

Explanation: Choice, access and conversation help develop reading interest and a reading community.

Q143. A diagnostic reading task should help a teacher identify—

- A. only the learner's rank in the class
- B. whether the learner likes the teacher's handwriting
- C. the specific difficulty, such as decoding, vocabulary, fluency or inference.
- D. the amount of homework a family can afford

Answer: C

Explanation: Diagnostic evidence should point to the skill or process that needs targeted support.

Q144. What is a major purpose of silent reading time?

- A. To ensure that no learner ever discusses a text
- B. To replace all teacher guidance permanently
- C. To test how loudly learners can pronounce words
- D. To let learners construct meaning independently and develop reading stamina.

Answer: D

Explanation: Silent reading supports independence, concentration and sustained engagement with text.

Q145. When a text is slightly above a learner's independent level, the best response is to—

- A. provide scaffolds such as previewed vocabulary, guiding questions or partner support.
- B. declare the learner incapable of reading
- C. remove all challenging texts from the curriculum
- D. give the same text without any purpose or support

Answer: A

Explanation: Appropriate scaffolding makes a challenging text accessible while preserving learning potential.

Set 12 — Writing, Grammar and Vocabulary in Context (Q146–Q160)

Questions in this set focus on process writing, meaningful grammar teaching, feedback, vocabulary development and authentic written communication.

Q146. Which sequence best represents process writing?

- A. Copying, memorising, erasing and avoiding an audience
- B. Planning, drafting, revising, editing and sharing or publishing.
- C. Testing, ranking, punishing and repeating
- D. Reading, translating, dictating and stopping

Answer: B

Explanation: Writing improves through stages in which ideas are developed, reviewed and refined.

Q147. What is the value of shared writing with a class?

- A. It makes learners watch without contributing
- B. It treats writing as a fixed product that cannot change
- C. The teacher and learners jointly compose a text while discussing choices of ideas, organisation and language.
- D. It assesses handwriting without considering meaning

Answer: C

Explanation: Shared composition models the decisions writers make and allows learners to contribute safely.

Q148. How is grammar best taught in a communicative English classroom?

- A. As definitions detached from any text or purpose
- B. Only by correcting every spoken sentence immediately
- C. Without allowing learners to compare examples
- D. In meaningful contexts, followed by opportunities to notice, practise and use the form.

Answer: D

Explanation: Context connects grammatical form with meaning and use; focused practice can then consolidate it.

Q149. Which feedback on a learner's paragraph is most useful?

- A. "Your idea is clear; add a linking sentence between these two points and check the past-tense verbs."
- B. "Everything is wrong."
- C. "Your handwriting is your personality."
- D. "Rewrite the whole paragraph; I will not explain why."

Answer: A

Explanation: Specific, respectful feedback identifies a strength and a manageable next step.

Q150. What should peer review of a short composition include?

- A. Public ranking from best to worst
- B. A simple checklist and respectful comments about meaning, organisation and language use.
- C. Correction of only the writer's handwriting
- D. Permission to change a classmate's ideas without discussion

Answer: B

Explanation: Guided peer review makes response focused and teaches learners to read as writers.

Q151. Which prompt is most likely to produce purposeful writing?

- A. Write the word "notice" one hundred times
- B. Copy a paragraph without knowing its audience
- C. Write a notice inviting families to a school reading evening and include the time, place and reason.
- D. List random verbs that are not used in sentences

Answer: C

Explanation: The task gives a genre, audience and communicative purpose, which guide appropriate language choices.

Q152. A learner spells "night" as "nite" consistently. What is a useful instructional response?

- A. Mark every page wrong without discussing the pattern
- B. tell the learner that spelling has no relation to sound
- C. make the learner memorise an unrelated word list
- D. Compare the spelling patterns in meaningful words and invite the learner to notice when each pattern is used.

Answer: D

Explanation: Pattern comparison and meaningful practice can develop orthographic understanding more effectively than punishment.

Q153. Why should handwriting not be the only basis for judging a composition?

- A. A composition also shows ideas, organisation, vocabulary, grammar and ability to communicate.
- B. Handwriting never matters in any classroom task
- C. Ideas cannot be assessed in written work
- D. A neat page automatically proves deep comprehension

Answer: A

Explanation: Legible writing matters, but written communication is a multidimensional skill.

Q154. Which is a suitable use of a language portfolio?

- A. Keeping only the highest score and discarding all evidence
- B. Collecting drafts and final pieces so that learners and teachers can examine growth over time.
- C. Replacing every classroom observation with one page
- D. Using it only to display a learner's mistakes publicly

Answer: B

Explanation: A portfolio shows process, progress and reflection rather than a single performance.

Q155. Sentence-combining activities can help learners—

- A. avoid thinking about meaning
- B. memorise punctuation without reading
- C. express relationships between ideas using a wider range of sentence structures.
- D. replace all oral communication

Answer: C

Explanation: Combining short ideas requires attention to meaning, connectives and grammatical choices.

Q156. Why should a teacher teach the use of a conditional sentence through a situation?

- A. Situations make every grammar rule optional
- B. Grammar forms have no relationship with speakers' intentions
- C. Learners can learn communication without understanding meaning
- D. A situation helps learners understand what the form means and when it is appropriate.

Answer: D

Explanation: Grammar is functional: a context clarifies the condition, result and purpose of the sentence.

Q157. When a teacher writes a paragraph while saying, "I will choose this connector because it shows contrast," the teacher is using—

- A. a think-aloud to model the writing decision-making process.
- B. a silent dictation test
- C. an assessment with hidden criteria
- D. a pronunciation drill unrelated to writing

Answer: A

Explanation: The teacher makes an otherwise invisible composing process explicit for learners.

Q158. Which criterion is most relevant when assessing a creative story?

- A. Whether the story uses the teacher's exact sentences
- B. Coherent ideas, effective organisation, appropriate language and an engaging use of imagination.
- C. The number of pages regardless of meaning
- D. Whether every learner chooses the same character

Answer: B

Explanation: Creative writing can be assessed with clear criteria without requiring identical content.

Q159. How can multilingual learners be supported during the planning stage of writing?

- A. Forbid planning until every English word is known
- B. accept only copied sentences from the textbook
- C. Allow them to brainstorm ideas using all their linguistic resources and then help them shape the English draft.
- D. treat home-language notes as evidence of laziness

Answer: C

Explanation: Planning in a familiar language can deepen ideas; the teacher can then support transfer into English.

Q160. What is a limitation of using copywork as the main writing activity?

- A. Copywork always prevents learners from seeing spelling
- B. Copywork develops every writing skill equally
- C. Copywork is the same as composing for an audience
- D. Copywork may build some transcription practice but gives little opportunity for original meaning-making.

Answer: D

Explanation: Copying can be one small support, but independent writing requires idea generation and communication.

Set 13 — Multilingual and Inclusive English Classrooms (Q161–Q175)

Questions in this set focus on language diversity, inclusion, individual differences, specific needs and respectful classroom practice.

Q161. A multilingual classroom can use learners' languages productively by—

- A. building bilingual word walls, comparing expressions and allowing peer explanation when useful.
- B. allowing only one language to be visible
- C. treating translation as cheating in every task
- D. separating learners according to home language permanently

Answer: A

Explanation: Planned use of multiple languages can clarify concepts and affirm learners' identities while English develops.

Q162. A teacher briefly uses a familiar language to clarify a difficult English instruction and then returns to English. This is —

- A. proof that English learning has stopped
- B. purposeful code-switching that supports access to the task.
- C. an error that must always be punished
- D. a replacement for all future English interaction

Answer: B

Explanation: Strategic code-switching can bridge meaning; it should support rather than eliminate opportunities to use English.

Q163. What is the most appropriate response when a learner's home-language accent influences English pronunciation?

- A. mock the accent so that the learner changes quickly
- B. ban the learner from oral participation
- C. Model intelligible alternatives respectfully and provide practice without shaming the learner's identity.
- D. assume the learner is not intelligent

Answer: C

Explanation: Pronunciation support should improve intelligibility while respecting linguistic diversity and dignity.

Q164. Which grouping practice is most inclusive for a mixed-proficiency English task?

- A. Allow only fluent learners to report
- B. keep one learner permanently as the translator
- C. group learners once by rank and never change it
- D. Use flexible pairs or groups with clear roles, varied support and chances for every learner to contribute.

Answer: D

Explanation: Flexible, purposeful grouping prevents exclusion and distributes language practice.

Q165. A learner with dyslexia finds decoding slow. Which support is most appropriate?

- A. Use multisensory, systematic phonics and allow additional time with accessible texts.
- B. Give longer passages without support
- C. ask the learner to memorise all words visually in one sitting
- D. remove reading instruction altogether

Answer: A

Explanation: Systematic multisensory support and suitable pacing address decoding needs without lowering the learner's potential.

Q166. How can an English teacher support a learner with hearing difficulty during an oral activity?

- A. Speak while facing the board and provide no transcript
- B. Face the class, provide written or visual support and ensure that instructions are accessible.
- C. exclude the learner from listening tasks
- D. assume lip-reading works in every classroom condition

Answer: B

Explanation: Visual access, clear positioning and written support make oral learning more inclusive.

Q167. What is an appropriate challenge for an advanced or highly creative English learner?

- A. Extra pages of the same easy copying
- B. permanent exemption from collaborative work
- C. An open-ended project requiring research, original choices and explanation of language decisions.
- D. public comparison with classmates

Answer: C

Explanation: Enrichment should deepen thinking and language use rather than merely add repetitive quantity.

Q168. Which practice helps reduce gender bias in English teaching materials?

- A. Assign leadership roles only to boys in examples
- B. use one fixed gender role for every family
- C. avoid discussing fairness or representation
- D. Use texts that represent people of different genders in varied roles, abilities and occupations.

Answer: D

Explanation: Diverse representation broadens learners' expectations and challenges restrictive stereotypes.

Q169. How should a teacher respond to differences in caste, community or family background during discussion?

- A. Establish respect, avoid assumptions and let learners contribute varied experiences without making anyone a spokesperson.
- B. ask one learner to represent an entire community
- C. ignore hurtful comments as a normal part of language
- D. choose examples from only the dominant group

Answer: A

Explanation: Inclusive practice values diversity while protecting learners from stereotyping or tokenism.

Q170. A learner's speech remains difficult for others to understand despite classroom practice. What should the teacher do?

- A. label the learner careless in front of peers
- B. Continue supportive classroom communication and seek guidance from appropriate specialists with family involvement.
- C. stop assessing the learner's ideas
- D. promise that a single punishment will cure the difficulty

Answer: B

Explanation: Persistent speech difficulties may need specialist support; the classroom should remain communicatively accessible and respectful.

Q171. A delay in English vocabulary development should not automatically be treated as—

- A. a signal to observe and support language learning
- B. a reason to examine exposure and interaction
- C. evidence of low intelligence.
- D. a possible area for targeted instruction

Answer: C

Explanation: Language proficiency and intelligence are not the same; learners need opportunity and appropriate support.

Q172. Which teacher statement should be avoided in an inclusive language class?

- A. "Take a moment to plan your answer."
- B. "You may use the word wall while drafting."
- C. "Explain your idea in the language that helps you begin."
- D. "You are a weak-English child, so you cannot contribute to this discussion."

Answer: D

Explanation: A fixed deficit label lowers expectations and denies participation; the other statements provide support.

Q173. Differentiation in an English classroom means—

- A. adjusting support, task complexity or response mode while keeping meaningful learning goals.
- B. giving unrelated work to learners based only on marks
- C. teaching one group and ignoring the rest
- D. lowering expectations for every learner

Answer: A

Explanation: Differentiation responds to learner variability without removing worthwhile language learning.

Q174. Which action improves access for a learner who struggles to write long answers but understands the text?

- A. mark the learner wrong because the answer is not long
- B. Allow an oral explanation, graphic organiser or shorter scaffolded response when the goal is comprehension.
- C. remove all comprehension questions
- D. assume understanding is impossible without neat handwriting

Answer: B

Explanation: The response mode should match the skill being assessed; comprehension is not identical to handwriting fluency.

Q175. Why can collaboration with families and the community help English learning?

- A. It transfers all teaching responsibility away from the school
- B. It requires families to speak only English at home
- C. It provides authentic language contexts, information about learners and additional resources for practice.
- D. It makes classroom assessment unnecessary

Answer: C

Explanation: Partnerships can connect school language with real experiences while the teacher retains pedagogical responsibility.

Set 14 — Assessment, Materials and Remedial Teaching (Q176–Q200)

Questions in this set focus on formative assessment, validity, reliability, classroom materials, feedback, diagnosis and responsive teaching.

Q176. Assessment for learning is best described as—

- A. giving only a final certificate
- B. ranking learners after the course is over
- C. testing without sharing any purpose or feedback
- D. Using evidence during learning to give feedback and adapt the next teaching step.

Answer: D

Explanation: Assessment for learning is formative: evidence is used to move learning forward.

Q177. A teacher changes a reading group after observing that learners cannot identify the main idea. This is an example of—

- A. using assessment evidence to adapt instruction.
- B. assessment used only for promotion
- C. a punishment for slow readers
- D. an examination with no teaching consequence

Answer: A

Explanation: The observation informs a new teaching response, which is a formative use of assessment.

Q178. The main purpose of assessment of learning is to—

- A. provide an immediate rehearsal before teaching
- B. judge or report achievement after a period of instruction.
- C. replace all classroom observation
- D. diagnose a difficulty before any learning opportunity

Answer: B

Explanation: Assessment of learning summarises achievement, whereas formative assessment guides ongoing instruction.

Q179. An English test has high validity when it —

- A. contains the largest possible number of questions
- B. uses difficult words even when they are irrelevant
- C. actually measures the intended language ability and not an unrelated skill.
- D. gives the same score to every learner

Answer: C

Explanation: Validity concerns whether the evidence supports the interpretation the test is intended to provide.

Q180. Reliability in language assessment refers mainly to—

- A. how colourful the worksheet looks
- B. whether every question is open-ended
- C. whether learners like the classroom story
- D. consistency of scoring or results under comparable conditions.

Answer: D

Explanation: Reliable assessment produces reasonably consistent evidence when conditions and performance are comparable.

Q181. Which assessment record best shows a learner's progress in writing?

- A. A portfolio containing dated drafts, revisions, feedback and final pieces.
- B. One spelling mark from the first week
- C. a public list of learners by rank
- D. only the final page with no earlier evidence

Answer: A

Explanation: A dated portfolio makes growth and the writing process visible.

Q182. What is the best use of an observation checklist during pair speaking?

- A. judge personality instead of language behaviour
- B. Record specific behaviours such as taking turns, asking for clarification and responding to a partner.
- C. write one general label such as good or bad
- D. record only how attractive the notebook is

Answer: B

Explanation: Specific observable criteria provide useful evidence for feedback and next steps.

Q183. A rubric is useful because it—

- A. hides expectations until after the task
- B. guarantees identical creative responses
- C. states criteria and levels of performance in a form that can guide feedback and scoring.
- D. measures only attendance

Answer: C

Explanation: A rubric clarifies what quality looks like and supports more transparent judgement.

Q184. A diagnostic language assessment is conducted mainly to—

- A. assign a permanent intelligence label
- B. replace all instruction with testing
- C. compare family incomes
- D. identify a learner's particular strengths and needs before planning support.

Answer: D

Explanation: Diagnosis should lead to targeted teaching, not a fixed judgement about the learner.

Q185. What should follow a diagnosis of difficulty with distinguishing /p/ and /b/?

- A. Focused listening and speaking activities using meaningful word contrasts, followed by reassessment.
- B. unrelated copying of a long essay
- C. a lower mark with no practice
- D. removal from all oral work

Answer: A

Explanation: Targeted practice addresses the diagnosed sound contrast and later evidence checks progress.

Q186. Which is a useful exit ticket after a lesson on identifying a text's main idea?

- A. Copy the date three times
- B. Write the main idea of today's short paragraph and underline one supporting detail.
- C. draw a picture unrelated to the paragraph
- D. write every new word from the dictionary

Answer: B

Explanation: The exit task directly samples the intended comprehension skill and its evidence.

Q187. Continuous and comprehensive language assessment should include—

- A. only a monthly grammar score
- B. only oral performance by confident learners
- C. regular evidence from different skills and activities, not just one annual examination.
- D. only the neatness of written notebooks

Answer: C

Explanation: Ongoing varied evidence gives a fuller picture of listening, speaking, reading and writing development.

Q188. Which is an authentic language assessment task?

- A. circling every third verb in an unrelated list
- B. reciting definitions without a communicative purpose
- C. copying a model notice without changing any detail
- D. Writing a short notice for a real or simulated school event with a specified audience.

Answer: D

Explanation: Authentic tasks resemble purposeful language use and make audience and context meaningful.

Q189. When selecting an English textbook, a teacher should give priority to—

- A. accessible language, varied genres, inclusive representation and opportunities for meaningful use.
- B. the largest number of pages alone
- C. only exercises that have one-word answers
- D. a cover that is attractive regardless of content

Answer: A

Explanation: A good resource supports language development, diversity, comprehension and active learning.

Q190. What is the most pedagogically useful way to use a short video in English class?

- A. play it as a reward without any language task
- B. Set a viewing purpose, pause for prediction or inference and follow it with discussion or writing.
- C. use it to avoid all teacher-learner interaction
- D. show it once and assess facts that were never introduced

Answer: B

Explanation: Multimedia becomes instructional when learners attend to meaning and respond in language.

Q191. A worksheet in language teaching should be considered—

- A. the only valid form of language learning
- B. a replacement for meaningful communication
- C. one tool within a broader set of interaction, reading, writing and assessment experiences.
- D. proof that every learner has understood

Answer: C

Explanation: Worksheets can provide practice, but no single material captures the whole of language development.

Q192. Which question best assesses inferential comprehension?

- A. What is the first word of the passage?
- B. How many letters are in the title?
- C. Did the teacher read the text aloud?
- D. What does the character's decision reveal about her priorities? Use a clue from the passage.

Answer: D

Explanation: Inference requires interpretation supported by textual evidence, not simple location of a word.

Q193. A learner explains a story clearly in conversation but writes very little. What is the most appropriate first response?

- A. Use oral rehearsal, a graphic organiser and sentence starters before asking for a longer written version.
- B. conclude that the learner has no ideas
- C. give a zero for every future language task
- D. stop using stories because writing is difficult

Answer: A

Explanation: The learner's oral strength can scaffold planning and reduce the writing load while composition develops.

Q194. Many learners select an incorrect answer because a comprehension question uses an unfamiliar cultural reference. The teacher should—

- A. assume all learners lack reading ability
- B. check whether the barrier is background knowledge or wording, then provide context and reassess comprehension.
- C. teach the answer as a fact without examining the barrier
- D. remove the learners from the language class

Answer: B

Explanation: Assessment evidence must be interpreted carefully; unfamiliar context can obscure the intended language skill.

Q195. Learners copy a passage accurately but cannot explain an implied meaning. Which next step is best?

- A. assign a still longer passage for copying
- B. test only spelling again
- C. Model think-aloud inference with clues from the text and guide learners through a similar example.
- D. tell learners that implied meaning is not part of reading

Answer: C

Explanation: A think-aloud makes the reasoning process visible and supports movement from transcription to comprehension.

Q196. Why is writing only "wrong" beside a learner's paragraph poor feedback?

- A. It is too encouraging and specific
- B. It always improves revision automatically
- C. It assesses the intended skill in great detail
- D. It gives no information about the difficulty or how the learner can improve.

Answer: D

Explanation: Useful feedback identifies what works, what needs attention and a manageable next action.

Q197. How can a teacher reduce bias in an English assessment?

- A. Use clear criteria, accessible instructions and more than one suitable way to demonstrate the intended skill.
- B. use idioms unrelated to the learning objective
- C. score accent or handwriting when they are not being assessed
- D. give advantage only to learners familiar with the teacher's examples

Answer: A

Explanation: Fair assessment separates the target language ability from irrelevant cultural, physical or stylistic barriers.

Q198. Which sequence best describes a remedial teaching cycle?

- A. Rank, punish, repeat the same test and stop
- B. Diagnose, plan targeted support, teach and practise, then reassess and adjust.
- C. Skip diagnosis, give identical homework and report failure
- D. Test once, label the learner and avoid further teaching

Answer: B

Explanation: Remedial teaching is responsive and cyclical; new evidence informs the next intervention.

Q199. Which practice develops learner self-assessment?

- A. hide all criteria until marks are announced
- B. let learners compare only their scores with others
- C. Give learners simple criteria and ask them to identify a strength and a next step in their own work.
- D. ask learners to judge work without any task goal

Answer: C

Explanation: Self-assessment is meaningful when learners understand the goal and use evidence to reflect and plan.

Q200. Which teacher response best reflects CTET language pedagogy?

- A. Rely only on translation and memorised grammar rules
- B. treat errors as disobedience and avoid learner interaction
- C. use one textbook exercise and one final test for every learner
- D. Combine meaningful communication, inclusive use of languages, explicit but contextual teaching, varied assessment and targeted support.

Answer: D

Explanation: Strong language pedagogy integrates communication, skills, learner diversity, contextual grammar, assessment and remedial action.
